DETROIT BAPTIST THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY
SUMMER SCHOOL 2011

The following is a general announcement of which courses will be offered, the weeks involved, and the professors who will teach. Registration will take place in the spring semester. The dress code for summer school will be business casual.

First Session:  May 17–27 (8:00–11:50 A.M.)
141  Old Testament Theology (2 hours), Mark A. Snoeberger, Ph.D.
  Room 202
  A systematic study of the major Bible doctrines from the standpoint of the Old Testament believer. Since stress in this course is on the progress of revelation, appeals for support to the New Testament are minimized; discontinuities between OT theology and Christian theology, however, are targeted for special emphasis.

230  1 Thessalonians: Greek Exegesis (2 hours), R. Bruce Compton, Th.D.
  Room 101
  This class involves translation, syntactical study, and other exegetical procedures. Attention is given to sermonic development.

Second Session:  May 31–June 10 (8:00–11:50 A.M.)
118  Ecclesiastes: English Bible (2 hours), Robert V. McCabe, Th.D.
  Room 202
  An expositional study with attention given to such introductory issues as the integrity, structure, and canonicity. The primary intent of the course is to develop the message of Ecclesiastes.

209  2 Corinthians: English Bible (2 hours), William W. Combs, Th.D.
  Room 101
  An exposition of the epistle emphasizing the theological content and development of the book.

Third Session:  June 14–June 24 (8:00–11:50 A.M.)
342  Kingdom of God (2 hours), Samuel A. Dawson, Ph.D.
  Room 101
  A study of the Kingdom in God’s plan from Creation to the Eternal State, covering the Bible on this subject from Genesis to Revelation. This is a course that will unify the Bible in your thinking and contains a great deal of prophetic material.

Special Third Session:  June 13–June 16 (Baptist-Mid Mission School of Church Planting)
537  Introduction to Church Planting (2 hours), Ken Davis, B.A., M.A., Baptist Mid-Missions church planter and Director of Church Planting at Baptist Bible Seminary; Roger McNamara, B.A., M.A., Baptist-Mid Missions church planter.
  Room 101
  This course will introduce the student to the biblical and practical principles of planting an independent Baptist church. Begins noon Monday and ends Thursday evening. This class includes 17 sessions with 25 hours of instruction as well as interaction with fellow participants. Come by the seminary office for more information, including a brochure, schedule, and costs. Students will coordinate assignments for seminary credit with Dr. Pearson Johnson.
